

Candidate's Guide to Zoom Interviews

Your technical questions answered

Do I need to download Zoom to join a meeting?

You do not have to have a Zoom account to attend a Zoom meeting or interview. You will be prompted to download the software, once you have clicked on the link that you have been provided. You may also wish to create an account, but that is not required to participate in a Zoom meeting. Download Zoom Mobile Apps for iPhone or Android

How do I join a meeting ?

Click on the link provided by your panel.

Can you use zoom on computer?

It is available for Windows, Mac, iOS, Android and works with PSTN and H. 323/SIP room systems.

Do I need a microphone for Zoom?

Prerequisites: For computer audio, you must have a working microphone, such as the built-in microphone, a USB microphone or an inline microphone on a headset or headphones.

After joining or starting a meeting, click "Join Audio by Computer" to connect your computer's speaker and microphone to the Zoom Meeting.

How do I leave Zoom meeting?

To leave a Zoom meeting from a room-based videoconferencing system, select 'End Call' or the hang up button on your touch panel or remote control. To leave a meeting from Zoom on your desktop, select 'End Meeting' then 'Leave Meeting'.

Test your Zoom meeting

Visit <http://zoom.us/test>

1. Click the blue 'Join' button to launch Zoom.
2. When prompted by your browser, click 'Open Zoom Meetings'.
3. The test meeting will display a pop-up window to test your speakers.
4. If you don't hear an audio reply, use the drop-down menu or click 'No' to switch microphones until you hear the replay.

Other important considerations

Ideally, use a desktop or laptop

Although you can use a smart phone for the interview, it might not look good if the phone is shaking as you hold it. If you have to use your phone or a tablet, make sure it's securely cradled or on a stand.

Be confident with the technology

In today's world, being tech savvy is a must. So, do the sound and camera checks to make sure everything works well in advance, while you still have time to resolve issues (apparently seamlessly). And if something goes wrong on the day, don't apologise; glitches aren't common, but they're not necessarily your fault! Remain calm and work through the problem. The panel will help you as best they can.

Pay attention to the sound quality, background and lighting

Sometimes microphones work but not well enough that you can be heard easily by other meeting participants. Also make sure that the location you will use is well-lit, so that the panel can see you easily. Finally, if you're worried about a messy room, look into selecting a virtual background for Zoom – you may need to test this out in advance to see if it works easily for you.

Dress the part

Even though you may be doing the interview from your home, it's important that you dress as you would if you were attending the interview at the organisation's offices. Even if you think only your top half will be seen by the panel, wear appropriate clothing in case you need to get up to grab something in the middle of the interview.

Be yourself

Although interviews are often nerve-wracking, remember that essentially the panel want to get to know who you are and what skills, knowledge and experience you have to offer them. They liked what they saw in your application enough to want to spend time getting to know you.

Smile, be polite, laugh over things that go wrong, speak clearly and conversationally, listen well and aim to connect with the panel. Take a second to think if needed, and be confident to ask for a question to be repeated if you're not clear about something.
